

The establishment of an institutional repository is relatively easy with some services of the RCAAP project. Thus, the Portuguese institutions of Education and Research have several options at their disposal, namely:

- 1) Local Repository - is the installation, configuration and operation of a repository with their own facilities and infrastructure;
- 2) Hosting Service for Institutional Repositories (SARI) - consists of the installation, configuration and operation of a repository dedicated to the institution with the support of the team and project infrastructure. See Hosting Service SARI for additional information;
- 3) Common Repository - the repository is like a "SARI repository" that enables the contents of your institution in one repository shared with other institutions. Intended to institutions whose scientific production does not justify the creation of a repository also serves as a incubator repositories. See Common Repository for additional information.
